The President calls for immediate action on Campbell Report

"The Campbell Report is a basic document for the reshaping of the University of Toronto," President Claude Bissell said Monday.

"I hope a representative committee of students and staff will be appointed immediately to initiate widespread discussion, to formulate agreed recommendations, and to facilitate implementation," he continued. "The Report has now been widely distributed, and I urge that all members of the University Community read and study it carefully."

"Any new disciplinary system for the University of Toronto must be based on the spirit and recommendations of the Campbell Report. With its basic assumptions I am in agreement: that a durable system of discipline must depend on student and staff participation; that the University should abandon the doctrine of in loco parentis; that the same act may violate both a university rule and the law of the land; that disciplinary rules may apply both to students and staff."

"In the light of recent discussions on the campus, chapter VII on 'Discipline and Demonstrations' will be of particular interest. I observe that 'the Committee could not reach a consensus as to whether charges could be laid against demonstrators in the tribunals of the University'. In addition, I believe many readers of the Report will find difficulty in appreciating the distinction between demonstrations 'that are violent or destructive in character and those that are simply obstructive'. On these two points, there is obviously need for greater discussion and clarification if a policy acceptable to the whole University is to be formulated. It will be at the discretion of the Reception and Implementation Committee to examine the recent working paper of the Presidents, particularly in the light of the reaction to that paper on this campus."

"It is my hope that the discussion and implementation of the Campbell Report will give the University Community a renewed sense of its obligation to protect and develop its principal functions of teaching, learning, research, and critical analysis."

Committee for the Examination of Disciplinary Procedures

The Presidential Advisory Committee for the Examination of Disciplinary Procedures at the University of Toronto—popularly known as the Campbell committee—was formed in February 1968.

The committee was asked to inquire into and report upon the existing disciplinary institutions and procedures and the principles and policies which had been followed. The committee was to examine the scope and adequacy of existing arrangements, with a view to recommending appropriate changes, if any. It was to seek to specify the proper limits of the jurisdiction of such disciplinary procedures as applied to both students and staff.

As originally constituted, the committee consisted of the following:

Prof. Ralph Campbell, chairman, who gave up his position as Associate Dean of Arts and Science to devote all of his time to the work of the committee.

Representing staff: Dr. James M. Ham, Dean of Applied Science and Engineering; the Rev. J. M. Kelly, President, St. Michael's College; Prof. Mary Laurence, Department of Psychology; Prof. S. M. Rosenbaum, Department of English, Erindale College.

Nominated by SAC: Wayne Hankey, School of Graduate Studies, Philosophy; Rick MacDowell, University College, Political Science and Economics; Roger Oatley, Law.

Representing alumni: Charles L. Dubin, Q.C., B.A. ('41).

Secretary: Prof. Arthur M. Kruger, Department of Political Economy.

Mr. Oatley resigned from the committee and was replaced by Michael Wharton. After Mr. Wharton resigned last April, Steven Langdon, 1968-69 SAC president, was the third student representative.

The committee began its work in the spring of 1968 and from the beginning welcomed observers. Briefs from organizations, groups and individuals were invited and efforts were made to seek out the opinions of as many persons as possible, including members of the public outside the University community. After the bulk of the written briefs had been received late in 1968, a series of public hearings was held, at which the authors of as many briefs as possible were invited to discuss their ideas with the committee.

Dean Emeritus appointed

Dr. R. R. McLaughlin, who heads the University's Planning Division, has been appointed Dean Emeritus of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering.

The President's statement concerning discipline

The following statement from President Claude Bissell was read at the Students' Administrative Council meeting on Wednesday night, Sept. 24:

I should like to make some comments following the meeting held in the Debates Room, Hart House, on the 23rd September.

I repeat what I have already said, that the statement of the Committee of Presidents was sent to the universities solely as a working document for discussion in each university. I have already said that it has not been possible to launch that discussion fully as yet in the University of Toronto. For my part, I am most anxious to see widespread debate on this document by all members of the university—staff, students and administrators.

My own position about the CPUO statement is that I endorse its main principles: "that no university can survive if it acts under force or the threat of force; that the university must take steps to defend itself against such an eventuality; that before it takes the final step of calling in outside support, it should consult a body representative of both students and staff".

I have no doubt whatsoever that these principles are acceptable to the University of Toronto.

I am equally sure that there are some parts of the CPUO paper which will be found unacceptable on this campus. For example, I do not believe that the Senate of the University of Toronto is the correct agency to choose the committee of faculty members and students proposed in the paper as a group to give advice to the President. That may be applicable; however, in universities where students have accepted membership on the Senate. Nor do I think that this university will accept as they are proposed the provisions of the paper concerning the identification of students, faculty and employees of the university.

Resolution of SAC Council on CPUO paper and discipline

The Students' Administrative Council last Wednesday night adopted a motion giving President Claude Bissell one week in which to:

Repudiate the Committee of Presidents' Working Paper on Order on the Campus;

Withdraw the Caput position of Sept. 20;

Agree that no new disciplinary position or action would be taken until after the Campbell Committee report had been published;

Repudiate the Caput as a legitimate disciplinary body;

Agree to publish the Campbell report to the entire University as soon as it had been received by him.

The motion was passed after members of SAC had heard a statement from Dr. Bissell (published in full in this issue) in which he said that some parts of the CPUO paper "will be found unacceptable on this campus". He mentioned as examples of this that he did not believe the Senate should choose the committee of faculty and students to advise the President, as suggested in the working paper, and the proposal concerning the identification of university students, faculty and employees.

The motion was passed by a vote of 28 in favour; 6 opposed, and 5 abstentions. One of those who abstained was Gesta (Gus) Abols, SAC president. He explained later that, although he supported the main body of the motion, he felt that the time limit made the demands an ultimatum, without offering the administration an alternative position.

Text of the motion follows:

"Since the SAC took the position at its June summer retreat that "i) students should not enforce rules which they had no hand in making,

"ii) that any new disciplinary procedures should await the Campbell re-

I would also repeat that my reason for establishing the subcommittee to reconsider the composition of the Caput was to bridge the gap between authorized practice and the receipt, discussion, and implementation of the Campbell Report, and to form for the interim period a representative body of students and academic staff that would deal with all matters of discipline. I have always believed that such a body is essential for the disciplinary policy that would carry the full weight of the university endorsement. I believe strongly in this principle, and as I emphasized at the meeting I will continue to work for its implementation.

This subcommittee worked hard during the spring and summer. However, no decision was reached and it was obviously the opinion of the student representatives and some of the staff that even a reconstituted Caput could not deal with disciplinary cases arising from disruptions of a political nature. I appeal to students and staff to reconsider this decision, and to provide the university in this interim period with the kind of body that can make decisions in all disciplinary matters, on the understanding that such a body could be modified in the light of the reports of the Campbell Committee and the Commission on University Government.

In the meantime I have no alternative except to consult the only body in the university that, by statute, is given disciplinary powers over the students of the university—the Caput.

Finally, I repeat again what I said at the meeting of the subcommittee that "we cannot deny the validity of existing law because we hope to change it". If there is a clear wide-spread decision throughout the university to change that law, then I shall be the first to propose that changes take place.

port, we therefore endorse the statement passed by the executive on Monday, Sept. 22, and reiterate the following demands:

"1) that President Bissell officially disassociate himself from the CPUO working paper since that paper has nothing in common with the democratic procedures which the Campbell report apparently endorses, and since it is not possible to support both reports,

"2) that the Caput withdraw its position of Saturday, Sept. 20, and

"3) that no new disciplinary position or action be taken until after the Campbell report is published,

"4) that the university recognize that Caput is not a legitimate body for dealing with student discipline and that any further positions or implementation of the Campbell report be handled by a committee representative of the university committee,

"5) that the Campbell report be published to the entire university as soon as it is received by the President,

"6) and that a week be given to the President to meet these demands."

During the discussion of the motion, Mr. Abols accused the student members of the interim committee on the composition of the Caput, Bob Barkwell and Greg Kealey, of being partially responsible for the crisis. They, he said, had not "dealt in good faith on this issue" within the committee. Mr. Abols complained that the Varsity had not reported a statement he made at the meeting of the Caput committee on Tuesday and charged the student newspaper with "attempting to distort the issue".

The SAC president asserted that the students on the Caput committee had not wanted disruption to be discussed in order to protect their personal political activities in the New Left Caucus. He also said the administration had been guilty of irresponsible behaviour by setting out policy on discipline while the subject was being dealt with elsewhere. He proposed that SAC, the Graduate Students' Union, and the Association of the Teaching Staff form a committee to determine guidelines for a policy on discipline.

Bob Barkwell, SAC vice-president, said Mr. Abols' personal attack was "not worth answering". SAC, he said, had agreed last summer that the interim committee should not discuss disruption. The President's statements, he continued, showed that "when it came to the crunch, the administration did not see fit to deal with students when making decisions which affect them."

Three hundred vote approval of the resolution by SAC

The decision to hold what was billed as a "mass meeting" at one o'clock last Thursday afternoon in Convocation Hall was taken by a group of students who met in Hart House after the departure from the debates room of the Committee to Examine the Composition of the Caput. The rally was to be asked to approve or disapprove the motion adopted on Wednesday night by the SAC and to decide what action should be taken.

By the time the meeting began, 20 minutes after the advertised hour, there were between 900 and 1,000 students seated on the floor, in the balconies, and on the platform. With the platform occupied, the hall has accommodation for about 1,700. Full-time student enrolment this term is 24,000, including Scarborough and Erindale Colleges.

Bob Barkwell, vice-president of SAC, one of the two undergraduate students on the Caput committee who withdrew from that body the previous day, opened the proceedings. He said that since he held particular views on the matter to be discussed, someone else should be chairman. Several names were suggested, including John Winter, last year's GSU president, and Steven Langdon, 1968-69 SAC president. When Mr. Winter declined the invitation, Mr. Langdon presided. He was helped in the chairmanship by Gary Webster, co-chairman of the Commission on University Government and a graduate student.

President Bissell was given a noisy welcome, in which applause was mixed with boos, when he took a seat on the platform with Robin Ross, Vice-President and Registrar. As soon as they sat down, Andrew Wernick and Dennis Corcoran of the New Left Caucus, Greg Kealey accused Dr. Bissell of trying to smash "not just left politics—politics" on the campus. The one week time limit was added to the Coulter-McEvoy motion at his suggestion. One week would give the administration time, he said, to go through whatever procedures were necessary for the retreat demanded.

Brian Johnson, editor of the Varsity, told the meeting that Mr. Abols' statement had not been published because the newspaper staff had been rushed on Tuesday night and Mr. Abols had not given a copy of his remarks to the Varsity.

walked from the floor to the platform and sat down beside Dr. Bissell. To their right were Gus Abols, SAC president, and Michael Vaughan, GSU president.

Heckling and applause met the President when he stepped to the lectern. Dr. Bissell reiterated his refusal to disassociate himself from the CPUO working paper on campus order and to withdraw the Caput statement of Sept. 20. He said the Campbell committee report had priority "as a document upon which this University must base its recommendations" on disciplinary matters.

Mr. Barkwell suggested that if the situation had not been resolved by the end of a week, another student rally should be held to decide what action was to be taken.

Asked from the floor for his ideas on the subject, Mr. Barkwell said one possibility was "the sort of non-obstructive sit-in that had been contemplated last year."

After Dr. Bissell left the hall, the discussion continued until well after three o'clock. Many students had already left the building for two o'clock lectures and laboratories and by three the attendance had shrunk to a little more than 300, many more having departed for classes.

When the vote to approve the SAC ultimatum was taken, Mr. Langdon insisted there must be a count and those who favoured the motion were asked to stand first, then those against. He was assisted in making the tally by several students who swarmed on to the platform beside him. The vote, the chairman said, was about 300 for and about 25 against, and that total represented practically all of the students who were then in the hall.

Motions on discipline approved by GSU at emergency meeting

At an emergency meeting of the Graduate Students' Union executive committee last Wednesday, Michael Vaughan, president, gave a resume of the proceedings to that date with respect to discipline on campus.

Four motions were then put to the executive and passed:

"That President Bissell's statement on Caput is totally unacceptable and should be repudiated by him."

This was adopted by a vote of 5 to 2. Mr. Vaughan voted in favour, John Winter, immediate past president of GSU, opposed.

"That a staff-student committee be established to consider aspects of discipline with respect to demonstrations, obstructionism and violence on campus with the intention of arriving at a unified staff-student policy in these regards."

The motion was passed unanimously. Mr. Winter left the meeting after the first motion was adopted.

"That the Varsity be censured for suppressing Mr. Abols' statement at the meeting of the disciplinary committee on September 23, 1969, and that proper publicity now be given by the Varsity to that statement."

The motion was passed unanimously. "That Brian Johnson resign as editor of the Varsity."

This motion was adopted by a vote of 4 to 3.

ii. Applications: A report on applications and acceptances in the School of Graduate Studies, as of June 2, 1969, showed a total of 7,122 applications, compared with a total of 6,817 for the previous year. Canadian students accounted for 47% of applications and 58% of offers of admission. Of the remainder, the largest component was that of the United States, with 17% of applications and 19% of admissions. Applications from countries other than Canada and the U.S. totalled 35%, with 22% of admissions. An analysis of enrolment corresponding to the previously circulated Survey of Nationality of Graduate Students Enrolled in Master's and Doctoral Degree Programs at Ontario Universities in 1968-69 would be prepared for distribution to Council.

Reports of Divisions

Division II

Council amended the 1969-70 Calendar entry for the degree of Master of Social Work, by substituting for the present section 4 the following: "The degree of Master of Social Work will be granted only to those students who have spent two academic years of full-time study at the School of Social Work. All requirements for the degree must be fulfilled within four years from the date when the candidate first registers for the Master's degree."

Division III

Council approved in principle proposed co-operative arrangements between the Geology departments here and at McMaster University, which would permit students from either university to complete a Petrology course to be conducted for a half-year at Toronto and a half-year at McMaster.

Division IV

Council approved the revised proposal of the School of Nursing for a Master's degree in Nursing, approval in principle having been given at an earlier meeting. Dean Sirluck was instructed to send the proposal for appraisal to the Ontario Council on Graduate Studies, and to inform Senate of the action taken.

Consideration of this proposal initiated some discussion of the present policy with regard to the implementation of such programs which could create substantial and sometimes unexpected demands on other departments in the various faculties. Dean Sirluck undertook to investigate this problem and to report further to Council.

Program in Economic History

Council approved the Department of Political Economy's proposal for a distinct program in Economic History. This represented the reactivation of an old program which had been made difficult by some recent changes of requirements; it would now be possible to offer a somewhat different curriculum leading to degrees in Economic History. It was recognized that there was some disparity in regard to examination requirements between the proposed program in Economic History and revisions to be proposed in the Political Science program. It was explained that the Department of Political Economy was now engaged in experimentation.

Outside minor

Council approved the following motion:

Although this Council is in favor of a student having academic contact with a department other than the one in which he is registered, in certain cases the stringency of the present outside minor requirement may be relieved, viz.

1. Subject to approval by the Degree Committee, a senior undergraduate course in another department may be used to meet the requirement for an outside minor in the Ph.D. program.

2. Departments whose discipline or subject area is sufficiently broad and diversified to furnish a variety of methods and approaches may, on the recommendation of the Executive Committee of the Division and with the approval of Council, be exempt from the requirement for an outside minor in the Ph.D. program.

On special request, Council subsequently approved a motion that this regulation be applied to Political Science.

It was also agreed that the principle of the outside minor be referred to the Divisions for special study.

Proposed changes in requirements for the Ph.D. in Political Science

Council approved proposed Calendar changes in the Ph.D. requirements in Political Science recommending (a) a reduction from six to four in minimum course requirements, and (b) the replacement of existing "comprehensive" examinations by two new pre-thesis requirements detailed in the proposal and designed to allow the student to demonstrate his familiarity with the prescribed literature in his non-thesis area and, by way of a substantial essay, his competence in his thesis subject and his ability to relate it to the whole area.

Proposal for a Standing Committee of Council on Planning and Review of Centres and Institutes

Council approved the recommendation by the Committee which prepared the SGS brief to the Commission on University Government that a Standing Committee of Council on the Planning and Review of Centres and Institutes be established. Although an initiative of the kind proposed might be relatively short-lived because of pending changes in the organization of the University, it was hoped that the experience of the new Committee would contribute to the design of any structure suggested to replace it. Explicit terms of reference for the proposed Committee were to be prepared and brought for approval.

Fellowships

Council approved a recommendation that the first Doctoral Thesis Prize in French be awarded to Dr. Bard H. Bakker.

Council approved a proposed change in the conditions of the James William Woods Fellowship.

Graduate program in Museology

It was confirmed that the graduate program in Museology was now undergoing appraisal. If quickly approved, it should be available for the 1969-70 session.

Apply for University keys to Safety & Security section

The issue and control of University keys became the responsibility of the Safety and Security section of the Physical Plant Department last November, as reported in our Nov. 14 issue of the Bulletin, but staff members are still not applying to the proper office for keys. Professor Winter on discipline

Professor F. E. Winter, Chairman of the Association of the Teaching Staff, has issued a statement clarifying his position in respect to the Committee to Examine the Composition of the Caput.

"I did tell the S.A.C. Executive group that as far as I am concerned the Committee is dead," he writes; "I definitely did not say that I was resigning from the Committee" (as reported elsewhere).

"In any event," he continues, "it would be difficult to resign from a body that no longer had any factual existence; more important, to make the gesture of resigning would have been tantamount to saying that I am not prepared to participate in any further discussions.

"I would add further that in my view there is a very considerable difference between a disruption of a class, in the sense of one class-meeting in a particular course, and disruption of a whole series of meetings. It seems obvious to me that one of these situations is much more serious than the other, and that they would have to be treated differently."
